Reciprocal Priviledges Extended to LMVYC

As members of SCYA, when our members race at other yacht clubs, the use of their club house and launching facilities is always extended to all participants for that day. For 2002, in addition to this courtesy, several SCYA yacht clubs (listed below)* have gone a step further and graciously extended the use of their facilities to our officers and members at other times. In some cases this may mean that we can use their dock facilities to tie up if we are in the area or in the case of clubs with full service facilities it means we are welcome to use their bar and/or dining room. Because all yacht clubs are primarily for the use of their own members, guests are asked to observe the following procedures when taking advantage of this extended courtesy from these clubs.

- Call ahead to make sure your visit will not conflict with other club functions
- Always check in with the receptionist or officer on duty, and have your current membership card from LMVYC with you to show on request
- Be sure to sign the guest register; this is mandated in some club charters
- If you plan to use the dining room, make a reservation (not all clubs have bar or dining room facilities, and some only operate on certain days of the week)
- If you are participating in a regatta or race, you and your crew are already considered to be guests
- And ... if approaching by sea always fly our club burgee ! (call ahead to see if they have dock space for you)

WORD GAMES

CLOSEHAULED: nautical; as close to the wind as a vessel will sail, with sails as flat as possible; term first used in English 1760-1770

Now let's have some fun!

How many words can you make using the letters in "Closehauled" ? A few restrictions: no proper names; no adding an s to make a plural (too easy); no tense changes to make another word, i.e. hose and hosed, too easy; however note that close and closed can have two different root words, as in "That was close" and "He closed the door"

The Challenge? See if you can get more than 75 new words from CLOSEHAULED... Good Luck! There will be a prize at the regatta on April 24 for the winner who comes up with the most legitimate new words.
